American Who Learn That a Title Is Quite Expensive

MANY, very many extremely wealthy American beauties have permanently expatriated themselves by marrying British noblemen and making their homes in England. Now these millionaires are forced to part with one-third of their incomes on the war side. For this is the British income tax since the war has brought on the financial crisis.

Many of them found that America was too crude and too rude for them. They wanted to live in ancient castles and manor houses and have obedient, highly trained servants to wait upon them. They wanted many things they thought they could find in Europe and not in America. They have found it quite expensive.

The pursuit of pleasure was in general their highest aim. They threw themselves into it with their whole souls and whole incomes. The American in fashionable English society have long been noted as forming the gayest, most brilliant and most extravagant element.

Some have paid even more than war taxes. In many cases cruel death has taken husbands, children or relatives acquired by marriage.

Instead of enjoying the pleasures and gayeties of a luxurious society they are living amid scenes of mourning and gloom. Their homes have in many cases been turned into hospitals. The young men of their acquaintances have perished on the battle front by scores, for the war has fallen most severely on the class which these American expatriates have joined.

Had they stayed at home in America they would have found their incomes lightly taxed. They would have had family and friends not decimated by slaughter.

The income tax is graduated, increasing with the size of the income, a principle already established. Under the new bill it is increased to such a point that incomes above $10,000 a year will pay 14 per cent. or more than one-third of the total amount.

Further Increase to Come.

Great as was this increase in taxation, Englishmen must not suppose it was the last increase that would be required before the war was over. Americans and all foreigners living in England are subject to the income tax if they maintain permanent residences there, whether they are British subjects or not.

It has been roughly estimated that these Americans will contribute about a billion dollars to the British war chest under the new income tax.

A few of the principal American payers of British income tax, with the amounts they will pay, approximated, are as follows:

William Waldorf Astor, $1,250,000.

The Duchess of Marlborough, daughter of William R. Vanderbilt of New York, $100,000.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, daughter of the late Eugene Zimmerman, daughter of the late Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati, $100,000.

Mrs. William B. Leeds, $250,000.

Lady Beatty, wife of Admiral Beatty, $200,000.

The Countess of Cranford, daughter of Oakes Mills of New York, $100,000.

Vicomtesse Maitland, daughter of Anthony Drexel, $100,000.

Curses to Pay $200,000.

The Lady Curzon, granddaughters of Lord Z. Leizer, $200,000.

The Countess of Craven, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin, $200,000.

Vicomtesse Desbureux, daughter of John W. Bonnyne, $100,000.

Countess of Suffolk, daughter of Lord Z. Leizer, $100,000.

Lady Nayler Leyland, formerly Miss Jennie Chamberlain, $100,000.

Countess of Annet, formerly Miss Elsie Hesse, $75,000.

In spite, one in heart, until now, 75-90,000 strong, they are halting the imperial advent of Yoshitoe, great brother linked to them all through the death of the world and the aura of the gods.

When the Japanese shouts "Banzai" and holds his lighted lantern aloft, waiting the new miracle 10,000 years of glory, it is not mere loyalty; it is love expressed in the magic terms of the race that has come from the loins of the Goddess of the Sun. Natural and easy as it all seems to the humanist or the prudent Japanese, it is to be the modern sacrifice of a saint modern nation throbbing to a single heart beat from the prehistoric world of gods and heroes amid the primal forces and elemental beginning of the world. Godhood, chivalrous, brotherhood, mystic soul union, combine in the investiture of Yoshitoe in the eyes of all the children of Nippon.

But the homelier glory, a more humanely touching thing, is the second phase of the accession to the throne. In the first—Boku—the enthronement, it is the divine ruler; in the second—Daikoku—it is the great peacemaker, the supreme husbandman, who reverences the fruitful soil whence spring the rice and millet on which the millions live from year to year.

secret rice, and offerings of products of shore and sea are there before him, gold and silk, lacquer and embroidery, shining weapons, stately banners, gorgeous vestments and flashing uniforms glow and coruscate around the enthronement, but all is plain and simple, primal, almost, in the Dajio—the blessing of the harvest, feasting of the rice—for which the millions toil and from which the millions gather muscle and strain to uphold the glory of Japan.

Indy Cheylesmore, daughter of F. O. French of New York, $100,000.

Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, niece of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, $100,000.

There, of course, are only a few of the more conspicuous cases. There are upwards of a hundred American women of great wealth who have married Britishmen of title. They do not all come in the class of those who must pay the maximum tax of one-third of their incomes, but all of them must pay very heavily. Practically none will pay less than 15 per cent. the rate that falls on those who have over $10,000 a year.

Lady Beatty Wife of Admiral.

The position of some of the Americans in England will doubtless excite general sympathy in this country.

Lady Beatty, a beautiful and brilliant Chicago girl, is married to Admiral Sir David Beatty, the most distinguished figure in the British navy in the war.

He has twice defeated the German fleet on the only two occasions when it ventured in force into the North Sea.

Lady Beatty has always spent her money most liberally in providing comforts and entertainments for the sailors in Admiral Beatty's command.

Now, while her husband is risking his life in winning battles for his country, she is compelled to hand over to the British government one-third of her income.

The Countess of Granard, who was Miss Beatrice Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oakes Mills and granddaughter of the late multimillionaire J. C. Mills, is one of the conspicuous contributors to the British war chest.

Her husband has gone to the front with a regiment and has, perhaps, been in action before now.

Her cousin, the Hon. Mrs. John Herbert Ward, was also a granddaughter and heiress of J. C. Mills. Mrs. Ward's husband is also at the front.

Marlborough Now Estranged.

The Duchess of Marlborough is in the peculiar position of paying a large tax because she married an Englishman, from whom she is estranged. Nevertheless, there is every reason to hope that the Duchess is satisfied to be a member of English society, although she can hardly enjoy the income tax.

Lady Nayler Leyland, who was the beautiful Jennie Chamberlain of Cincinnati, enjoyed for many years the esteem and personal friendship of the late King Edward. She has had the sorrow of losing in the war her son, Sir Albert Edward, Nayler Leyland, named after the king. But she must continue to pay her income tax to the war minister.

Mrs. Leeds Prefers Freedom.

No one has enjoyed the delights of European social life more thoroughly than the beautiful Mrs. William B. Leeds, who inherited an enormous fortune from her late husband, accumulated in Rock Island ventures and the "oil case trust." Mrs. Leeds has been sought in marriage by the most attractive and eligible princes and nobles in Europe.

Apparently she enjoyed the society of them, but she has obstinately preferred freedom and admiration to the possession of a title. She has been aptly called "the merry widow." She has "millions and millions," as one English aristocrat summed up her character. Now the terrible war, with its crushing tax, has come to jar the serenity of her socially ideal existence.

Emperor of Japan Member of Family That Has Ruled That Country For Seventy-five Generations

Emperor and Empress of Japan and Young Girls Who Grew the Sacred Rice Served at Feast.

THIS enthronement ceremonies marking the formal accession of an emperor to the throne of Japan to his appointed must be grasped in their entirety. It is not merely that of a mikado, direct human descendant of an unbroken line of seventy-five generations of rulers stretching back to the mists of history and beyond, but something to the Japanese mind infinitely greater, for in the far mystic realm of eternal gods emanate—the world of the hidden gods —which lies back of record and tradition even, the eye of faith sees the dazzling, mighty sun goddess, Amaterasu O-Mikami, placing the descendant of her son on the throne in the land of Yamato. From this Jimmu Tanno, thus divinely decreed to rule, the following eye sees the line of mikados come down the ages to the secular days of the present. But more than that, the faith-thrilled mind sees the people of Yamato, sprang, too, from divine conceptions, covering the plains, mastering the mountains and reforging the seas of the Island Empire of the Rising Sun. And from that natal day of the sun begotten race the Japanese behind the first generation pass from the working world to the world inviolable, each soul becoming one of the great ghostly company of the gods. From generation to generation it proceeds down twenty-five centuries to this very day. Side by side along the centuries he sees a living and upon the throne and a living, godlike people, one

Sixteen Heroes Missing

Secretary Redfield is engaged in a quest for sixteen missing heroes. They were part of the crew of the American steamship Albatross, which had star line, which in October, 1913, went to the assistance of the burning steamship Victoria in the north Atlantic ocean.

The crew rescued eighty-nine persons, in many instances at the risk of their own lives. For their gallant work, Congress voted its thanks and authorized medals for each crew and a gold watch for Captain Paul H. Redfield. When it came time for the presentation many of the men could not be located. One since has been found in London, another with the Belgian army,

Feeding the Work Horse

Two Pounds of Oats Daily For Each Hundred Pounds of Live Weight

The work horse may be compared to an engine. Just as the horse converts energy into motion, so the engine converts fuel into motion. It is interesting to note that the horse in the stable, converted into fuel, is converted into motion by the horse while the engine converts only about one-tenth.

Feeding standards are the result of numerous experiments which have been conducted to determine the relation between the muscular work performed and the food materials required per day. These cannot always be adopted as they are, but must be modified or changed to suit the varying conditions. It can be readily understood that on land and in the water, the horse must be fed on the basis of the work, condition and kind of animal.

Other numerous points must always be considered. One point however is applicable in every case, that is, regularity in feeding. It is a very important consideration, but one which is usually underestimated. The horse which is fed irregularly, even when the food which is employed in the ration, should be fed regularly and on time. At all times, the horse knows when the feeding is coming, and becomes nervous if it is delayed; his digestive system becomes accustomed to a certain amount of food, and if this amount is not supplied, the digestive system becomes deranged, and a certain amount of digestive trouble is caused. This trouble may be caused by excessive feeding, or by excessive deprivation.

Considerations have to be made of the stomach of the horse. It is filled and emptied two or three times a day. The food in the stomach, the order of giving the food, rate of eating, is very important. On towards the end of the meal the digestive system is stimulated by the food, and the food is in the stomach for a longer time, and the food is not so much as the first. The food is not so much as the first, and the food is not so much as the first.

Feeders vary in their opinions as to whether horses should be fed before or after work. Good arguments can be advanced to support both lines, but the one which is most common is to feed the horse before work. The horse is not so much as the first, and the food is not so much as the first. The horse is not so much as the first, and the food is not so much as the first.

It is a well known fact that the horse is not so much as the first, and the food is not so much as the first. The horse is not so much as the first, and the food is not so much as the first. The horse is not so much as the first, and the food is not so much as the first.

A Remarkable Discovery

Discovery of Lost Diary is Noteworthy Addition to Napoleonic Records

Nearly a century has passed away since the battle of Waterloo, and yet the discovery of a diary of the Emperor Napoleon, written during the campaign of 1815, has added a new chapter to the history of the world. The diary, which was found in the possession of a French soldier, is a remarkable discovery, and it is a noteworthy addition to the Napoleonic records.

From the North.

Extract from the "Acta Albertana".

A thesis College University Grounds, South Side, Edmonton:—

"It has been said that all good things come from the Southern part of our Fair Province of Sunny Alberta, and when one considers the number of men that we have in College this year we are attracted to positions of prominence in the College life and activities, we are apt to believe the statement. The outstanding case is that of Kenneth Bateman. Owing to some of our best men leaving to go to leave King and Country several of our positions became vacant, that of Secretary of the Athletic Society, W. K. Bateman was unanimously elected by vote of the Students Council to fill the position and for the first time in the history of the College we have a "President" so that suggest body.

In addition "Ken" is President of his year (the Freshman Class) and it is owing to his wise and capable leadership that many troubles, incidental to "Freshmen" life, have been avoided.

His leather Clarence is champion basketball of the College for the present year, and as they depart for a well earned Christmas holiday, we wish them every joy and happiness, together with all the compliments of the season to those Blyssian Fields of Love, "New Island and distant."

A little advice "Ken," bring a few more gifts from Bow Island to "A. C.," don't keep them all in that part of the country for yourself.
